JERRY GARDNER

B. C. A. SOCIETY

Veteran P. R. R. Engineer Dies by Side of Track.

NO ONE WAS NEAR

When We Were What We Last Had Been on the Service Thirty-Four Years—Other Deaths.

Jerry Gardner, a veteran engineer in the employ of the Pennsylvania Railroad company, was found dead near Edgerton, Monday night by John Abbott. For several months Mr. Gardner has been stricken with spells of smothering and choking, attributed by him to asthma. Because of this, all of us by now are used to seeing him at the State Line board-ing house and was on his way to this place when the fatal attack occurred.

The deceased was the oldest locomotive engineer on the Bedford division and was blessed with good health, having lost only three days because of sickness during his service of 31 years.

He joined the P. R. R. force of employees as a brakeman on the Middle division in 1870 and later as a hand worker on the N. C. R. between Marsfield and Satyrus. When the Lewisburg division was opened he went on that road as a brakeman and came to the Bedford division with Superintendent W. H. Brown in 1872 performing the duties of a freight conductor until 1881, when he was made a engineer and served in that capacity until he answered the last summons.

He was born near Newport, Kentucky, and a boy of 14, he became a brakeman on the Middle division and his death has brought sorrow to many. He was a true type of what is best in America's manhood—he was true to his friends and loyal to his employers.

It. G. Buchanan.

H. G. Buchanan, whose death was mentioned in this paper last week, was born near Cook's Mills on May 14, 1847, and died on the farm on which he was born on February 1, 1905, being aged 58 years, eight months and 17 days. He was united in marriage with D. L. Devore, daughter of William Devore, of Cook's Mills, on December 29, 1866. To this union three children were born—John G., Ruth D. and Daniel G., who died six years ago. He is survived by his parents, Benjamin T. and Sarah N. Buchanan, of Hyndman, by his wife, one son, one daughter, one brother, J. W. Buchanan, of Cook's Mills, and one sister, Mrs. D. W. McGregor, of Hyndman. He was a member of the Methodist church having joined in N. H., 1868. He always held to his principles and was true to them, though it has won't split his ticket. He was always elected to any office he ask'd for, showing that his friends were willing to trust his abilities, in his hands. At the time of his death he was serving as the collector. The funeral was the largest ever witnessed at Cook's Mills. The service was conducted by Rev. J. M. G. Dunn, of Batsto, assisted by Rev. William Brown, minister of Elizabethtown.

A. L. COOPER.

A. L. Cooper, an aged and well-known citizen of Schellsburg, departed this life at his home in "New Town" on Friday at midnight, aged about 70 years. He lived in the country during the most of his life, except three years in the Civil war and some years at Scranton and Greensburg.

By trade he was a short-horn and feed and rest-horn work he had no equal. He had a competition in Mifflin, Elizabeth, and Marion, who he made his home with his wife, J. A. Wertz. He went west about four years ago.

It is the duty of every Democrat to go to the polls and vote for those named by his party at the primaries for the various offices whenever such candidates are worthy of support and this ticket is made up of men who are worthy and efficient.

RAILROAD RATE REGULATION. The discussion that has been brought out by the proposed law to regulate the rates of freight-car rying roads has served to make clear to the public mind the fact that it is the prevention of violations of rate schedules by officials of such roads rather than new rate schedules that is needed. The present rate is for the most part not excessive, but the downward pressure given to favored shippers by "cutting" existing rates makes it difficult, impossible for competing firms that are not thus favored to carry on a business in some sections. A law requiring a strict adherence to the present or any other schedule certainly would be a benefit to the stockholders of the roads concerned, for it is not likely to lessen the number or total of shipments. The public will be benefited, the roads themselves will be benefited and the only persons to whose detriment the law could possibly work are those now being favored because of some "pull" by which they obtain the lower rate or rebate. The move is in the right direction and should be crystallized into a law that would enable the Inter-State Commerce Commission to prevent discrimination no less than unjust classification, and provide for the bringing to justice those concerned. Power to enforce existing laws or those substituted is the thing needed by the commission, and if they are not then enforced the people will incur into the cause. President Cassatt admits that the Elkins act of 1903 needs to be broadened so as to meet modern methods of collusion between large shippers and the carrying roads but strongly opposes the establishment of special railway courts for the adjudication of railway litigation. He is believed to be right in this stand for the present courts in connection with the Interstate Commerce Commission are sufficient for all purposes of federal regulation.

On February 5, 1904, a diplomatic relations between Russia and the Mikado's government ceased and this was the signal for raising the curtain on the stage of one of the greatest war dramas of which we have record. Two days later Japan seized Masanpo, Corea, as a military base and on the eighth and ninth of the same month Togo's blow to the Asiatic fleet of the Russian empire was delivered. One year ago Russia, in addition to her vast acreage extending to the Pacific, was in possession of Port Arthur and the extremity of the Liuchung promontory—she was mistress of the east. Port Arthur had been rebuilt and Dalian built as an auxiliary harbor at an enormous expense. From these two points Russia looked out over China and Japan, apparent master of the situation, and her proud fleet in the harbor emphasized the boast of her dominance over the Orient. Port Arthur was claimed to be impregnable. Such was the condition at the beginning of the war the first year of which has just been brought to a close, but how changed now! The year has been one of a succession of disasters to the Russian arms. In the battle of Chemulpo, February 8 and 9, the Varig and Kordet were sunk; on August 10 the greatest naval battle of the war was fought and the fleet of Port Arthur was defeated and dispersed and the remaining fragment did not again assume the aggressive to the time of the fall of the fort. In the sea of Japan four days later the Vladivostok squadron was defeated and Russia's power in eastern waters was a thing of the past.

The siege of Port Arthur really began when the Japs occupied Dalian, May 30. From that date on until the fall of that Gibraltar of the east the soldiers of the Mikado persistently hammered away at the Russian stronghold until it fell. The capture was the most brilliant achievement of the Japanese arms and the defense was perhaps the most glorious page in Russian annals.

It is estimated that Japan has had 160,000 men and 160,000 horses and Russia about 380,000. The total in killed is about 65,100 were soldiers of the Mikado and 59,500 subjects of the Tsar. The number of wounded is given at 265,000, making the total casualties 389,600. In money the year's warfare has cost the two nations more than $800,000,000. Thirty-five vessels of war have been lost to the Russians and 23 to the Japs. Such is the record of a year, and the end is not yet. And all this has grown out of Russia's policy in Manchuria and her growing prestige in Corea, which Japan feared were not only determined to her expansion but even threatening to her national existence.

Largest Warship Planned.

Plans are now being prepared for a new battleship which will eclipse any other in existence. Its main battery consists of ten 12-inch guns and its secondary battery of 20 naval three-inch guns. The crew of the ship will be 1,000 men. Hospital Stomach Bitters in cases of stomach, liver and bowel complaints completely eclipses that of any other remedy. The great success has been due to the fact that it is the only proper and sound sleep, strengthens the organs of digestion and assimilation and thus brings health, bloating, nausea, sick headache, constipation, torpidity, etc., to a standstill. We urge every sufferer to try a bottle at once. Good health will be your sure reward. Thousands of men and women have found this true. Your druggist will supply you with the genuine.
